Kuttippuram palam kavitha is a song which talks about the beauty of Kuttippuram and the deity at Kuttippuram, Sreekrishna. This song or poem is sung as part of the ritualistic offering to an idol and hence this song is also called as "Kavitha" . The temple has a huge idol of Krishna playing flute. The musical notes coming from the flute turn into small birds and disappear into the sky. This legend is not to be found in any earlier text on music or musicology, even though there are many legends on how Lord Krishna's divine music evolved or helped others. The song tells the story of Lord Krishna playing flute on the hill after he had attained his final divine body. Krishna was an incarnation of Vishnu. His flute (nagapura mukha) is covered with the serpent skin (kavitha). The skin was offered to Lord Vishnu when he was in his childhood and still growing up. The poet in the Kuttippuram palam kavitha talks about how several people came to enjoy the music that came from Krishna's flute and how all those who listened to it were inspired to dance, sing and create various forms in art, sculpture and architecture. Even after several thousand years we can see this in many creations we see today which most of them is inspired from the art and sculptures of India. The song also talks about how Krishna played his flute and how the small notes turned into little birds and went up in the sky and disappeared. Kuttippuram palam kavitha is sung as part of the ritualistic offering to the idol at Kuttippuram temple. It is sung during pooja or worship offered to Lord Krishna at Kuttippuram temple. The ritualistic offering includes several things, such as - waving a lighted lamp, applying sandal paste to Krishna's feet etc. The song Kuttippuram palam kavitha is part of the ritualistic offering and hence, this song is actually called as "KAVITHA" . Kuttippuram palam kavitha (poem) and Kuttippuram (temple) : Kuttippuram palam kavitha is a poem or a song in Malayalam language. It belongs to the Swati Chandrika Gama of songs, which are sung as part of the ritualistic offering to an idol. In earlier times, it was not possible to write down these songs. Thus, this art form was handed down from generation to generation orally from one Guru or teacher to another.
